

Regarding the Information Dissemination by the Nationwide Warning System (J-Alert) in the Event of a Ballistic Missile Launch from North Korea to the Surrounding Areas of Kanto Region (Ibaraki etc)

Ballistic missile is launched

*You receive the following alert email in Japanese on your cell phone

(First email) Information on the missile launch and a call for evacuation
“A missile has been launched. A Missile has been launched. North Korea has launched a missile. Evacuate to a sturdy building or underground.” *First, information on the launch will be announced, and then a call for evacuation will be given. If you are outside, evacuate to the sturdiest building or underground area (underground shopping center, underground station, or any underground facilities) close by.

<If it is Determined that a Missile is Landing near Kanto Region>

<If a missile has flown past the airspace near Kanto Region>

(Second email) A call for immediate evacuation	(Second email) A call for immediate evacuation
“Evacuate immediately. Evacuate immediately. Immediately evacuate to a sturdy building or underground. There is a possibility of a missile landing. Evacuate immediately.” *If there is a possibility of a missile landing near Kanto Region, a call for immediate evacuation will be given. If you are outside, evacuate to the sturdiest building or underground area (underground shopping center, underground station, or any underground facilities) close by.	“The missile has passed. The missile has passed. The missile has passed through the airspace near Kanto Region. If you see a suspicious object, do not go near it and report it to a police officer or a firefighter.” *If a missile has flown past the airspace near Kanto Region, this message will be played. If you see a suspicious object, do not go near it and report it to a police officer or a firefighter.

(Third email) Information on the location where the missile has landed (in case Missile Landing near Kanto Region)
“The missile has landed. The missile has landed. There is a possibility that the missile has landed near Kanto Region. Further information will be given periodically. Please stay inside for safety.” *If it is assumed that a missile has landed near Kanto Region, information on the location where the missile has landed will be announced. Further information will be given periodically. Please stay inside to be safe.