

Information on transferring a driver's license from outside Japan to a Japanese license

You may apply for a Japanese driver's license if you meet the following conditions:

- your foreign driver's license is valid at present;
- after obtaining your foreign driver's license, you stayed in the country where the license was issued for a minimum of three months (you need documents that certify your stay).
- now you reside in Ibaraki Prefecture.
- you have residential status (your visa is valid).

To apply for a Japanese driver's license, you need following documents:

- Your current foreign driver's license (if you have any expired licenses after renewals, provide all of them).

* If your foreign driver's license does not have the date of issue, please attach a certificate of original date of issue. e.g U.S.A., Australia, the Philippines and so on.

If your foreign driver's license has the date of issue but does not specify your three-month stay in the country since the date of issue due to renewal, you need to attach a certificate of original date of issue.

- Translation into Japanese of your foreign license (translations by either JAF or foreign embassies are admissible).

* JAF Ibaraki branch phone: 029-244-2660

- kokusekino kisaisareteiru Jyuuminhyou (Residence certificate which include your nationality. Japanese nationals are required to present certificate of residence including domicile of origin).
- Residence Card
- Passport (If you have any old passports after renewals, present all of them. If you have lost your passport, present immigration certificate.)
